Coordinated Entry is the process which people experiencing (@high risk) homelessness can access the crisis response system in a streamlined way, have their strengths and needs quickly assessed, and quickly connected to tailored housing and other services.

The WA Co Coordinated Entry system does NOT screen out those who are hard to house (history of evictions, lease violations, or poor credit), lack of income, active/past drug/alcohol use, past/current domestic violence victim, criminal records, a client's previous area of habitation, type/extent of disability (or services related to the disability), or resistance to treatment(s)/intervention(s).

The WA Co Coordinated Entry system provides assessments to anyone experiencing literal homelessness regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, familial status, handicap, disability, actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identification, or marital status.
